

PAUL JOSE | Dr. Bejene Kothari

Edge As An Opportunity For Urban Development

The paper analyses spatial and activity changes that happen around a physical edge of a historic core and a modern development and to understand how these spaces are related. The process is carried out by applying Kevin Lynch's Good City Form Theory.

The paper also examines what criteria determines an urban edge and how the activities on both sides of the edges are related. Managing these edges would enhance any intervention projects that comes inside or outside the historic core.

Keywords: Historic edges, spatial and activity changes, structure, sense, historic core