

UTHARA K S | Dr. Priyanjali Prabhakaran

Analyze The Factors Of Housing Stress In Traditional Community In The Process Of Transformation

When we consider our nation, it have different types of traditional settlements which are in process of transformation, these transformations creates issues in the housing environment and in the developments those are linked with that area. Inorder to making better policies and strategies associated with these traditional communities , it is to know the general characteristics of these community and how housing stress are generated due to the transformations or how these transformations creates the housing stress. So this study is focusing on housing stress, its various classification, causes of transformation and how the housing stress can be assessment in traditional community.

Keywords: Housing Stress, Traditional community, Transformation , Causes